

The topic of violence has received considerable attention in the last decade in phenomenology and continental philosophy of religion. To apply phenomenology to the question of religious violence, however, has thus far remained a desideratum. Phenomenology without a doubt has a long tradition in studying the modes of religious experience, and the last 30 years especially have contributed to a fecund trove of exploring religious experience as such, and its key concepts (e.g. transcendence, gift/giveness, adoration, sovereignty, love, or the verticality of religious experience). Yet this sub-field has hardly contributed to current debates on the role of religion in our contemporary societies, not to mention, of religious violence. It is the major aim of workshop to elaborate on the potential phenomenological research has to be applied to such topics. To begin this challenging venture, the contributions to this workshop will: investigate a variety of related phenomena; discuss them from various phenomenological (yet highly transdisciplinary) viewpoints; and assess critically the capacities of phenomenology in general to give an account of these problematics.

For more Information: michael.staudigl@univie.ac.at

Organized by

Jason W. Alvis & Michael Staudigl

Phenomenologies of Religious Violence

Exploratory Workshop

Vienna

19/20 March 2018

Generously supported by (FWF P 23599).

Otto-Mauer Zentrum

Währinger-Straße 2-4

1090 Vienna

Monday, 19.03.2018

10:00 Welcome & Opening

Session I

Moderator: Branko Klun

10:30 James Mensch, Charles University Prague:
"Violence and the Return of the Religious"

11:30 Joseph Rivera, Dublin City University:
"Girard's Phenomenology of Religious Violence"

Lunch Break

Session II

Moderator: Michael Staudigl

14:00 Sylvain Camilleri, University Louvain-la-Neuve: "Fitnah: Some Phenomenological Remarks"

15:00 Ruth-Rebecca Tietjen, Tübingen University:
"Religious Zeal"

Coffee Break

Session III

Moderator: Jason Alvis

16:30 Pascal Delhom, Flensburg University:
"On Violence as a Violation of Religious Integrity"

17:30 Michael Staudigl, University of Vienna:
"Toward a Phenomenology of Religious Violence:
Mapping the Field"

Tuesday, 20. 03. 2018

Session IV

Moderator: Michael Staudigl

9:00 Jonna Bornemark, Södertörn University
"Magic and Violence in Giordano Bruno.
A Merleau-Pontyan Perspective"

10:00 Eddo Evink, Groningen University
"Transcendental and Religious Violence"

Coffee Break

Session V

Moderator: Branko Klun

11:30 Renée van Riessen, Leiden University:
"God and Violence. Reflections on Monotheism and Genesis 22"

Lunch Break

Session VI

Moderator: Eddo Evink

14:00 François-David Sebbah, Paris Nanterre:
"Religion, Technoscience, and Violence: Some Reflections Following Derrida's 'Faith and Reason'"

15:00: Jason Alvis, University of Vienna:
"Violence Gives Rise to Thought: Synthesizing
Ricoeur's Various Phenomenologies of Violence"

Coffee Break

Session VII

Moderator: René van Riessen

16:30 Ruud Welten, Tilburg University:
"'In the Beginning was Violence':
Emmanuel Levinas on Violence and Religion"

17:30 Felix Ó Murchadha, University of Galway
"World-Endings and the Temporality of Religious Violence"